SUMMARY DESCRIPTION OF THE CLASSIFICATION

This Index of Localities has been compiled primarily to assist in allocating the address of a residence to the NSW statistical local area in which the residence is situated; thus it provides a facility for coding residential addresses based on locality names which are in common usage even though they may not necessarily be 'official' names (i.e. recognised by government and semi-government authorities). The term 'locality' is, therefore, used in the broadest sense — a 'locality' is regarded as including all residences for which the name of the locality is used as the address.

2. In prevoius issues of this Index, the localities have been obtained from a computer file of localities in NSW only. For the first time, the NSW localities in this issue have been extracted from the National Localities Index (NLI). The NLI is an Australia-wide index for which compilation first commenced in 1989 principally for use in processing the 1991 Population Census, and consists of two parts. The first part is a comprehensive list of over 28,000 localities in Australia, together with their postcodes and Australian Standard Geographical Classification (ASGC) code. The second part is a streets sub-index which has been constructed to enable more accurate coding to be achieved where a locality lies in more than one statistical local area (SLA), the lowest level of the ASGC.

3. Users should be aware that there are definitional and source problems when compiling an Index of Localities. The primary source of identification of localities is the Population Census and information from local government councils. Other sources of update include addresses shown on birth and death registrations, gazettals made by the State Geographical Names Board, changes made in current editions of metropolitan and country street directories, and alterations made to the Australia Post Postcode Directory. A comparison between the Index of Localities and Postcode Directory, which list the postcode for each 'place name', provides an example of the definitional difficulties that exist. A large number of those 'places' are not in the Index (generally because they are mail distribution points or are non-residential, e.g. commercial centres, industrial complexes, shopping centres, educational institutions) and in many cases are not in the index maintained by the Geographical Names Board. This latter index, which is also a source of update, defines localities on a different basis and a selective system applies when updating from this source.

4. Localities are listed in alphabetical order in this Index. The postcode of the locality is shown directly following the locality name. The name of the SLA in which the locality (i.e. the address of the residence) could be situated, together with the SLA code which forms part of the ASGC code for each area, is/are shown opposite the locality name. It should be noted that, in most cases, SLAs are equivalent to legal local government areas (LGAs). However, in some instances, LGAs have been split for statistical purposes to form SLAs which aggregate to the whole of the relevant LGA. This is explained in more detail later in the section 'Split Local Government Areas'.

Method of Indexing

5. Locality names consisting of two or more words are regarded as single words for indexing purposes. For example,

Bingleburra
Biniguy
Binna Burra
Binnaway

6. The practice followed in indexing multiple word locality names is to use the accepted word order where this could be established (for example, North Sydney and North Rocks are indexed under N). In other cases, localities with multiple word names are usually indexed under the generic name followed by any qualification such as central, higher, old, upper etc (for example, Avon Dam Upper; Botobolar Lower; etc.). Some of the larger localities with multiple word names have been cross-referenced, but in other cases where a locality name does not appear under the expected order of words, it will be necessary to look under the possible alternative order(s).

7. Where two or more distinct localities have the same name, the localities are indexed in postcode order with the statistical local area(s) and code numbers shown opposite. For example,

Avalon (2107)	Pittwater (M)	6370
Avalon (2430)	Greater Taree (C)	3350

8. In such cases it is necessary to determine which locality is referred to in the address before the residence can be assigned to the correct statistical local area. The postcode may be useful in these cases.

Localities which embrace only residences within the one statistical local area

9. These cases present no difficulty and are listed in the Index with the name of a single statistical local area and the appropriate code number opposite. For example, indicates that all addresses incorporating the locality of Adelong (postcode 2729) are situated in Tumut Shire for which the SLA code is 7500.

Adelong (2729)	Tumut (S)	7500

Localities which embrace residences from more than one statistical local area

10. Where a particular locality is situated in, or near the borders of, two or more statistical local areas, and persons whose place of residence may be in any of these areas use the locality name as their address, the locality is listed as indicated below:

Aberdeen (2336)	Scone (S)	6800
	Muswellbrook (S)	5650

11. The statistical local area which contains the majority of dwellings using the locality as an address is listed first. Therefore, the above entry indicates that, although some residences with the address 'Aberdeen' may be in Muswellbrook Shire, the majority of such residences are in Scone Shire.

Australian Standard Geographical Classification (ASGC)

12. The ASGC is a system, devised by the Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS), for the classification of statistical units (such as private residences) to geographical areas (or spatial units). Each spatial unit in the Classification (e.g. Botany Municipality) constitutes a single element of the Classification, and all spatial units of a particular type (e.g. Statistical Local Area) together cover a defined area or the whole of Australia. Each type constitutes a particular 'hierarchic level' of the Classification.

13. The Main Structure of the ASGC for New South Wales down to the Statistical Local Area level is set out on pages vi to viii. Note that the ASGC code shown for each locality in this Index relates only to the SLA component of the full code and excludes the codes for the hierarchic levels above SLA.

14. A detailed description of the ASGC is contained in the ABS publication entitled Australian Standard Geographical Classification (1216.0). This manual contains details of the nature, structure, purposes and principles of the ASGC, and lists and describes the various spatial units covered.

Split Local Government Areas

15. The State is divided for statistical purposes into 12 Statistical Divisions, which are further subdivided into 42 Statistical Subdivisions. These Statistical Subdivisions mainly comprise complete local government areas but in a few instances Subdivision boundaries dissect local government areas.

16. There are five local government areas in New South Wales so affected: the Shires of Tweed, Inverell, Blayney, Cabonne and Evans.

17. In addition, there are two local government areas which are split principally for the purpose of showing separate retail statistics — the Cities of Sydney and Newcastle. The splitting of these local government areas is not for general statistical purposes and, therefore, does not affect Subdivision boundaries.

18. The term used in the ASGC to describe each part of any split local government area and the whole of an unsplit local government area is Statistical Local Area (SLA).

Postcodes

19. All localities in this Index have been assigned a postcode, even though the locality may not appear in the Australia Post Postcode Directory. The sources used to determine the appropriate postcode have been the Population Census, local area maps and Australia Post.

General

20. The allocation of localities has been made on the basis of statistical local area boundaries as existing at 30 June 1993.

21. Abbreviations used, additional to those relating to split local government areas mentioned earlier, are:

C	City
M	Municipality
S	Shire

22. It should be noted that, from 1 July 1993 in terms of the Local Government Act 1993, areas administered by local government councils will no longer be known as Municipalities or Shires, but will be identified as Areas. The areas of those councils proclaimed as Cities will continue to be identified as Cities.

23. Information contained in this publication is also available on floppy disk.

24. Users are reminded that the ABS has compiled a National Localities Index (NLI) which incorporates localities in all States and Territories. In addition, the NLI contains street listings for most localities which are split between two or more SLAs. Its principal purpose is to provide a practical facility for automatic coding of addresses. The NLI is available in computer readable form (floppy disk and magnetic tape).

25. It is intended that the Index of Localities for NSW will continue to be published every three years.
